

Candidate shows interest in the people he'd serve

When I was a kid, I used to help my dad campaign for his favorite candidate. We would fold brochures and knock on doors in hopes that someone would speak with us. It has been a long time since a candidate has knocked on my door. Lives move much too quickly for the time that would require. So I was pleasantly surprised when David Billings, candidate for supervisor in Forks Township, knocked on my door. He offered some information and shook my hand. Then he went to the next door.

It was much later when I received a call that he was interested in talking to local residents to hear their concerns about the community. I have met with him twice now. And I like what I hear. He is a candidate running for the right reasons. He loves Forks and wants to ensure any growth is sustainable for the infrastructure. Because he is a parent, he understands the challenges facing our public schools. And he is willing to sit down with residents to discuss what matters. It is so refreshing to meet a candidate who is actually interested in meeting the people he will represent. For these reasons, I think David Billings is the right candidate for Forks supervisor.
